PREFACE

This document has been prepared by Police Scotland, the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Service, the Scottish Courts and Tribunals Service, the Scottish Prison Service and the Parole Board for Scotland working in partnership.

Section 2 of the Victims and Witnesses (Scotland) Act 2014 requires Police Scotland, the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Service, the Scottish Courts and Tribunals Service, the Scottish Prison Service and the Parole Board for Scotland to set and publish standards of service for victims and witnesses. These standards are set out in this document.

All of our standards will be monitored, reviewed and reported on annually.

The standards of service for the previous year and each organisation's report against those standards are published, and can be viewed on any of the organisations' websites (for website addresses please see the section on How to Complain below).

INTRODUCTION

The contribution of victims and witnesses who stand up to crime, report crime to the police and who give evidence in court, when necessary, is central to effective justice. Providing more help and support for victims and witnesses is therefore a key aspect of building a better criminal justice system. The agencies of the criminal justice system responsible for setting these standards for the forthcoming year are committed to doing that, and a number have either reviewed and/or added to their standards. The Standards of Service were first published in 2015, and five years later the aim remains that they are dynamic and responsive to victims' needs.

Working together, and with the Scottish Government, we are committed to helping victims and witnesses feel supported, safe and informed at every stage of the process from offence to sentence end. We all recognise that the victim's journey can be complicated, at times frustrating, and often deeply upsetting. We do not always get it right. It is recognised that, collectively, we need to do more, and can do more, and this document sets out what that entails in the coming year.

There is a desire to do more and a willingness to do things differently to improve the support and help for victims and witnesses. However, change requires to be considered and informed by the collective experience of victims and witnesses. Going forward, the criminal justice agencies, with the grateful assistance of Victim Support Scotland, look forward to continue working collaboratively with the Victims Organisations Collaboration Forum Scotland (VOCFS) to better understand the needs of victims and how we might help. Our agencies are also represented on the Victims Taskforce which is focused on improving the experiences of victims and witnesses in the criminal justice system.

If you have been the victim of, or witnessed a crime, you are likely to have contact with a number of different organisations and people who work in the Scottish criminal justice system. Some of these organisations and people will provide a service directly to you, such as the provision of information or support, and others will have contact with you because of your involvement in a court case.

We want to make sure that you are able to exercise your rights, that you are treated fairly, and that you are supported in making your voice heard. You are at the heart of our justice system

This document seeks to explain what you can expect to happen at each stage of the criminal justice process, the standards of service you can expect, and who you can contact for help or advice. The Standards of Service aim to deliver the main principles set out in Section 1 of the 2014ct. These are:

- ☑ That a victim or witness should be able to obtain information about what is happening in the investigation or proceedings;
- ☑ That the safety of a victim or witness should be ensured during and after the investigation and proceedings;
- ☑ That a victim or witness should have access to appropriate support during and after the investigation and proceedings; and
- ☑ That, in so far as it would be appropriate to do so, a victim or witness should be able to participate effectively in the investigation and proceedings.

In relation to obtaining information, you can also expect that:

- ☑ You should have access to relevant information at an early stage and at appropriate points in the process. This should include information on procedures, your role in them (if any), reports on progress (giving an explanation of any delays) and outcomes of criminal proceedings, and where, if possible, you can get further information and assistance;
- ☑ You should be able to understand the information that is given to you. The language should be easy to understand and the information should be available in alternative languages or formats if required; and
- ☑ You should be told who to contact if you want to discuss the information that has been provided and anything you do not understand will be explained to you.

Your personal information will be protected at all times. Where it is necessary to share that information with other agencies, this will be done lawfully and in a safe and secure manner.

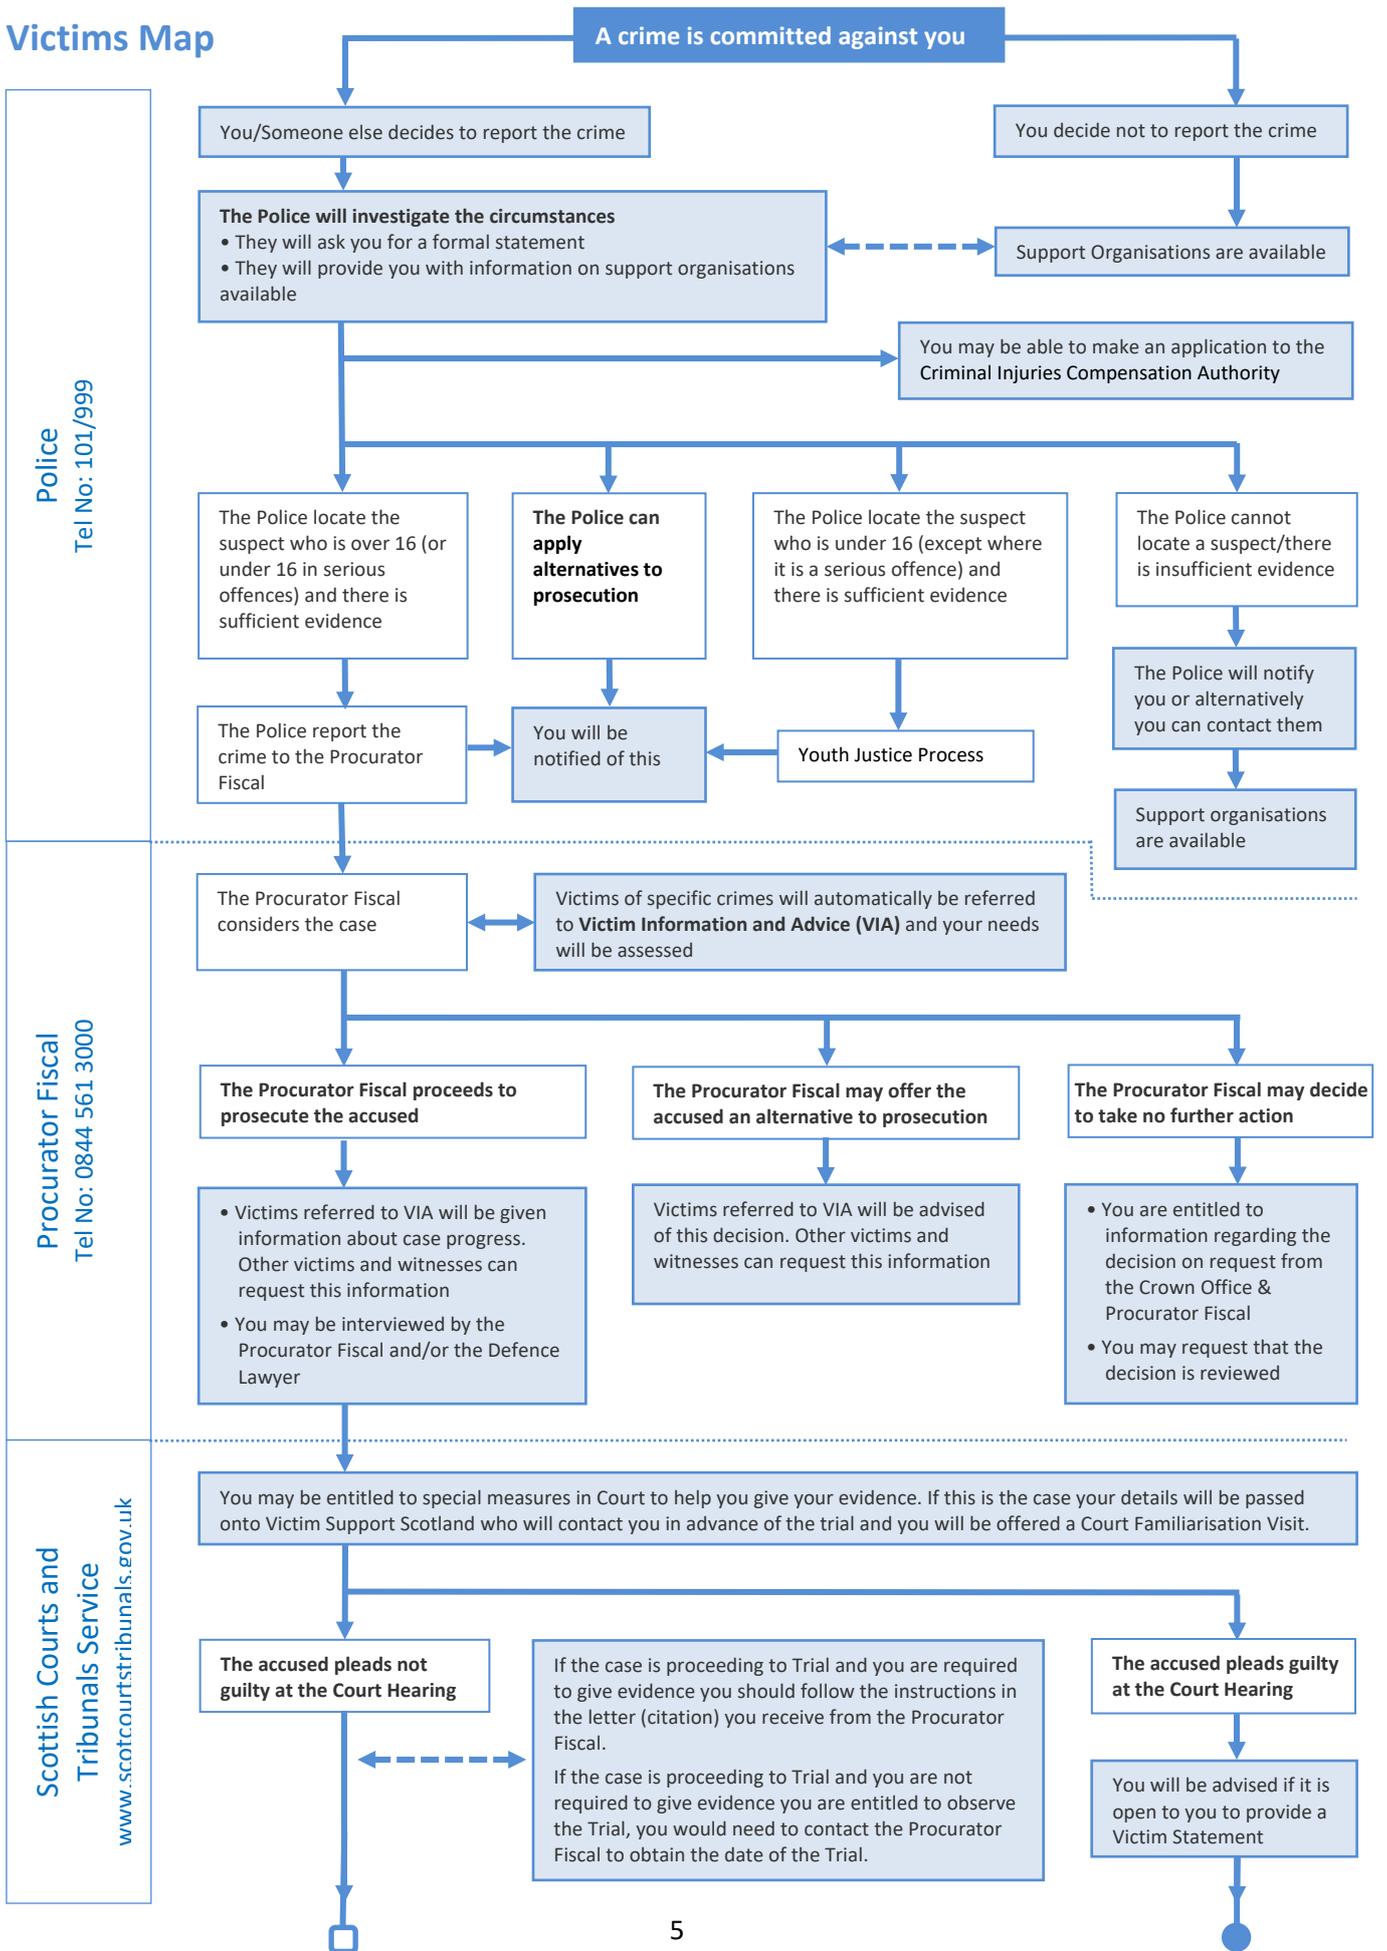

What happens at each stage of the criminal justice process?

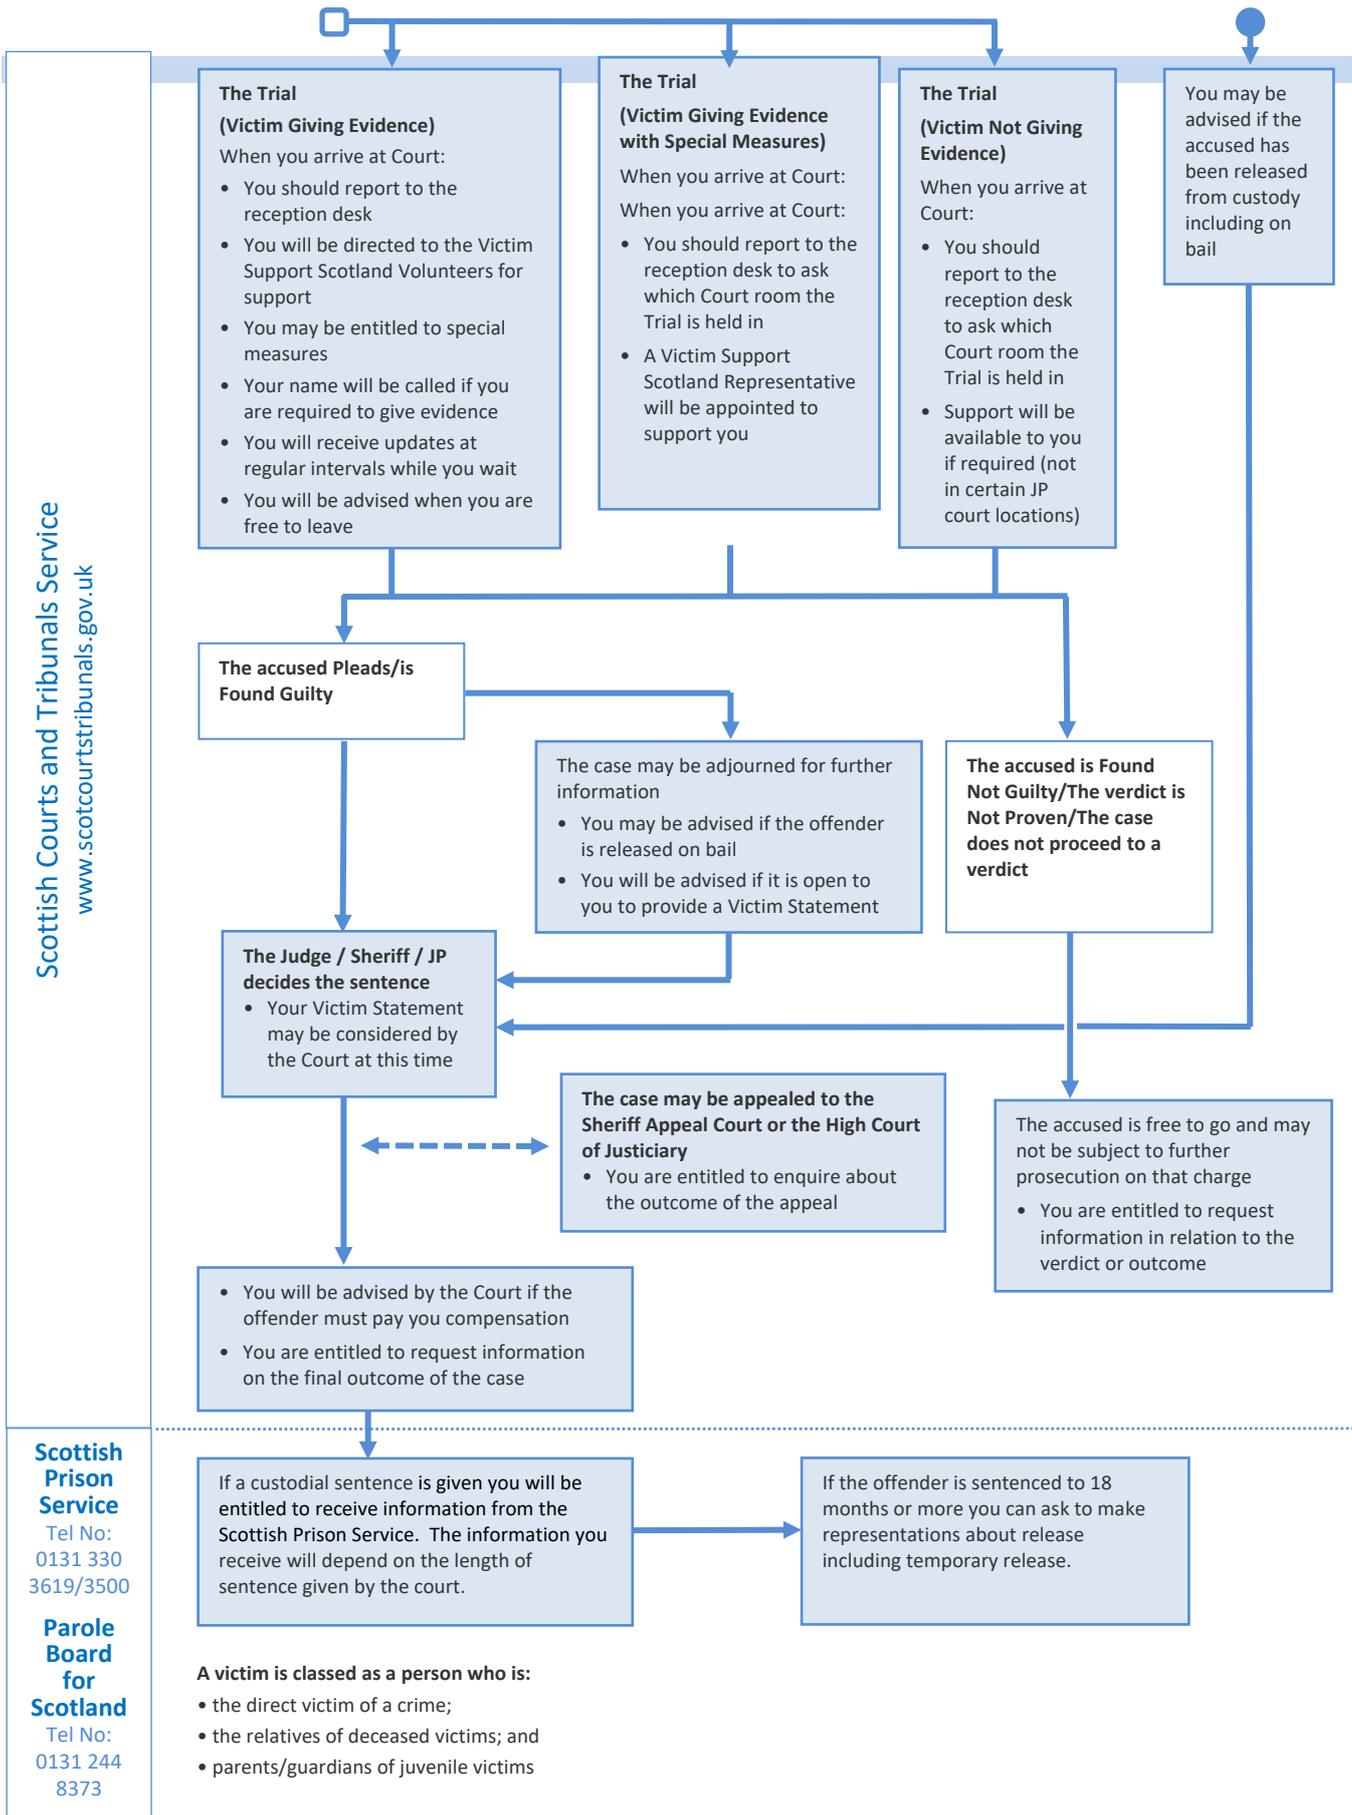

Police Scotland, the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Service, the Scottish Courts and Tribunals Service, the Scottish Prison Service and the Parole Board for Scotland each play a part in the overall justice process.

The following flowchart sets out what you can expect from each organisation at each stage of the process if you are a victim of crime.

We welcome any comments you may have in relation to the map and, in particular, if you found it helpful. You may do this by using any of the agency contact details on the final page of this document.

Where required, additional support will be provided and any reasonable adjustments made to ensure that you have access to information and support services;
- ☑ Work together and in partnership with victim and witness support organisations to ensure you are provided with the best service possible; and
- ☑ We will each ensure that we comply with our respective Complaints Policies, details of which are found below.

The victim(s) will be advised of the information which has been redacted. Where appropriate, their views may be sought in advance of deciding whether information falls under Rule 6.

BRITISH TRANSPORT POLICE

British Transport Police (BTP) is not an agency subject to the statutory requirements regarding the setting of standards and reporting on performance. BTP is however aware of the need to provide support to those persons vulnerable within the system and has set operational standards in support of victims and witnesses and these can be viewed here. Any enquiries regarding the standards may be directed to D-Crime@btp.pnn.police.
